Matt,
 I hope you
 come to visit
 this summer
 when school is out we could get a bunch of people and go ~~back~~ bike riding.

DEDICATION

"Now the days passed slowly and wearily. Many of the dwarves spent their time piling and ordering the treasure; and now Thorin spake of the Arkenstone of Thrain, and bade them eagerly to look for it in every corner."

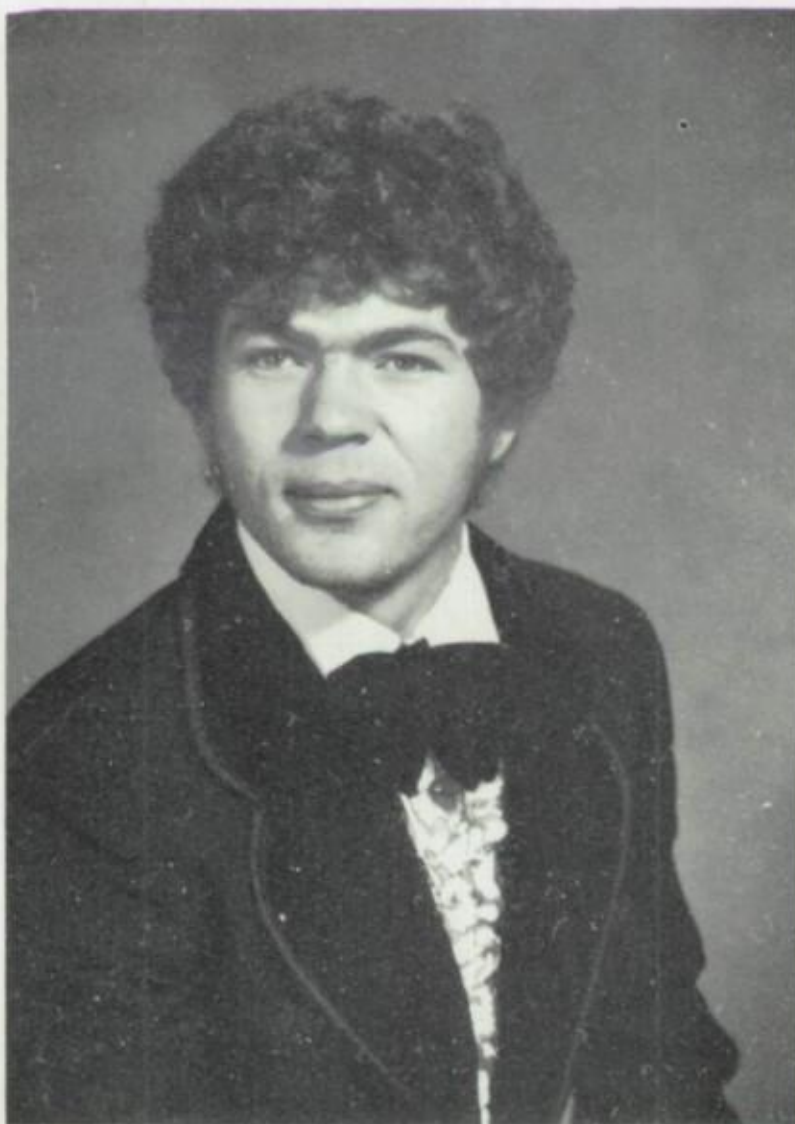

Now the days passed slowly and wearily. Many of the students spent their time stacking and unstacking their books; and Mr. Miller spoke of Algebra and Geometry, and bade them eagerly to use their brains to find the answer.

"May the wind under your wings bear you where the sun sails and the moon walks."

PAUL COOPER

"... and I think I have earned some of your dragon gold."

JOE DWYER

"Out of the frying pan into the fire."

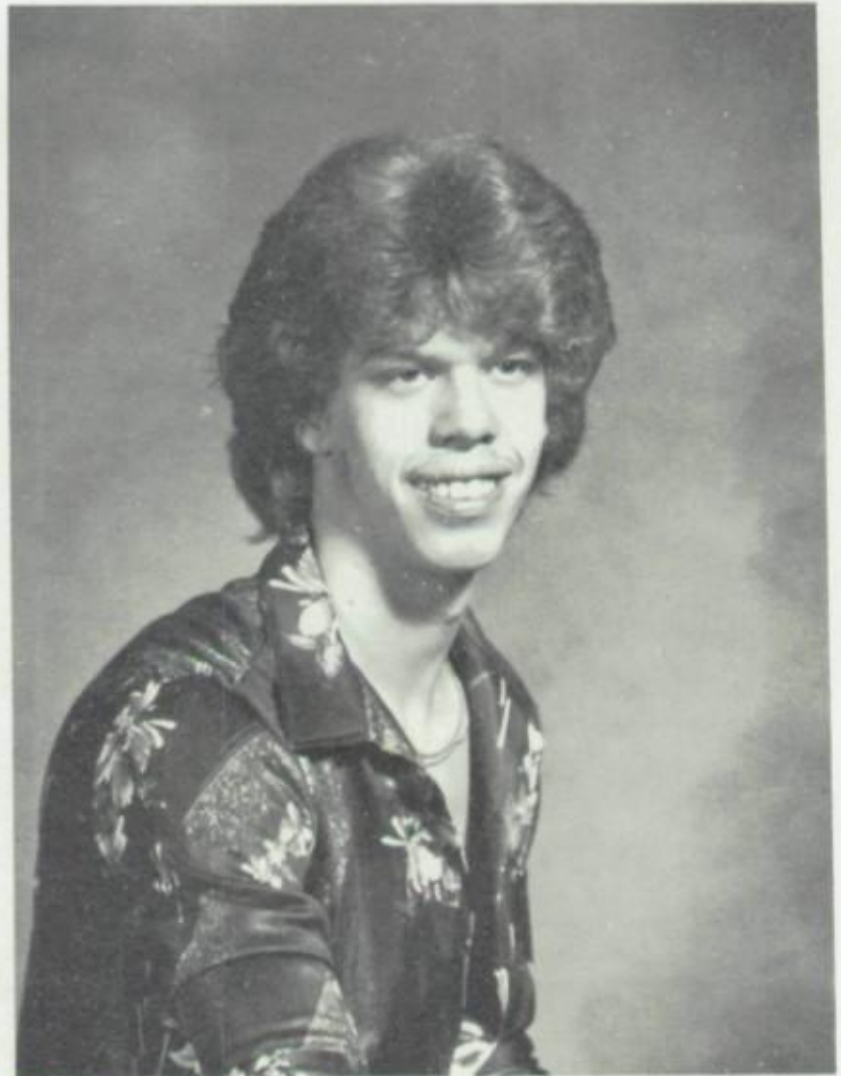

VIVIAN GROSVOLD

"There is more in you of good than you know."

LISA HANSEN

"May I ask where you are coming from, are we all here?"

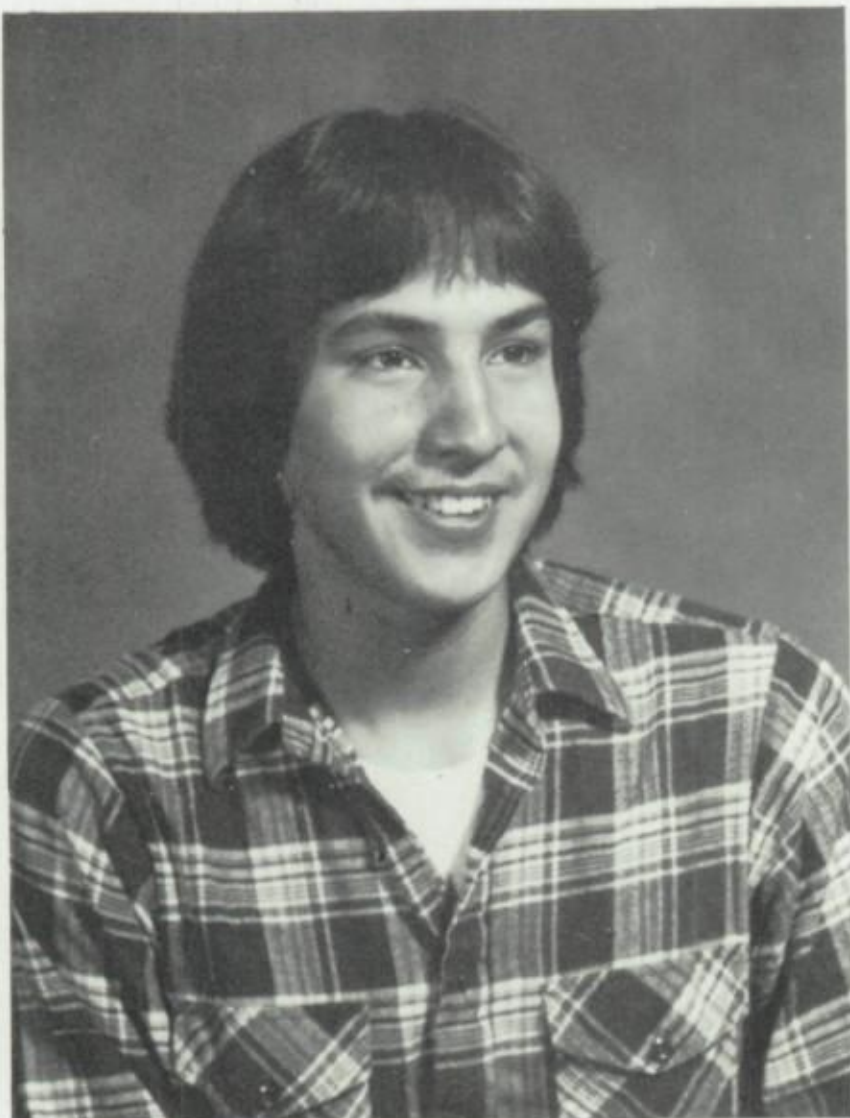

ERIC HANSON

"You need not be frightened like a rabbit, even if you look like one."

SHARON JOHNSON

"Go whistle again I am in for a party one or more won't make a difference."

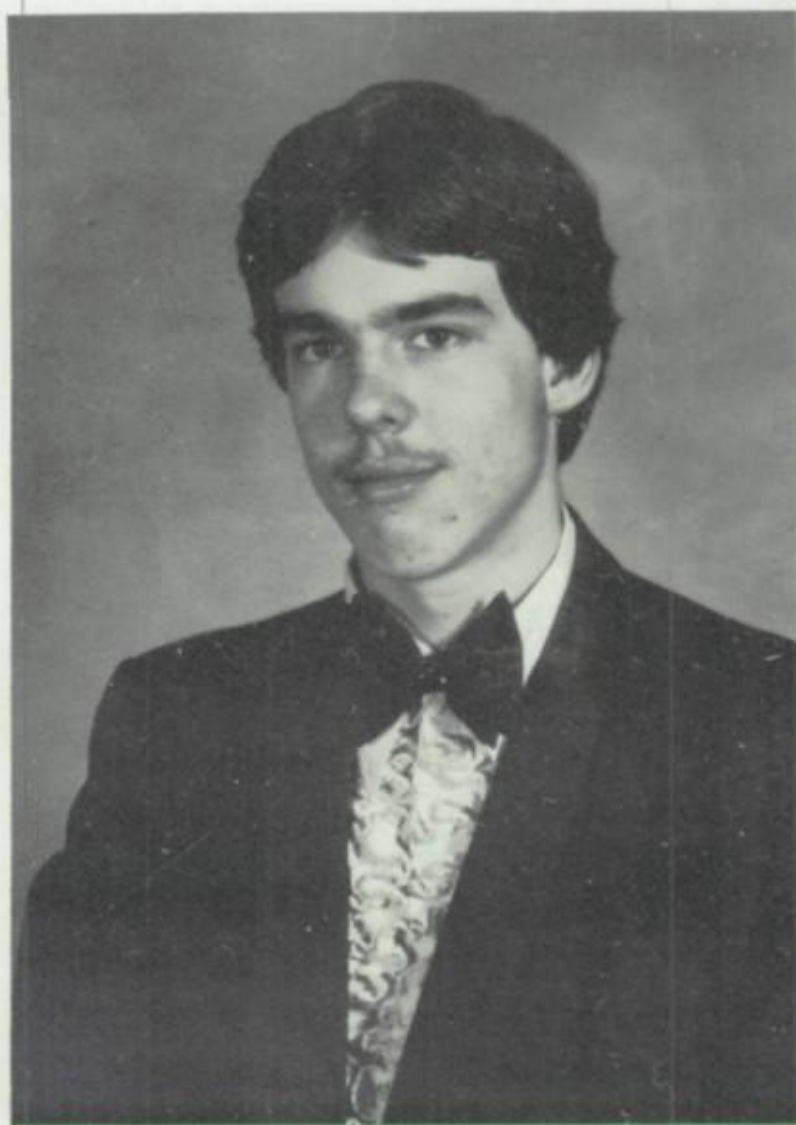

MIKE LOVE

"O Smang the chiefest and greatest clamities."

SONJA MILLER

"I always meant to see you all safe, if possible, over the mountains."

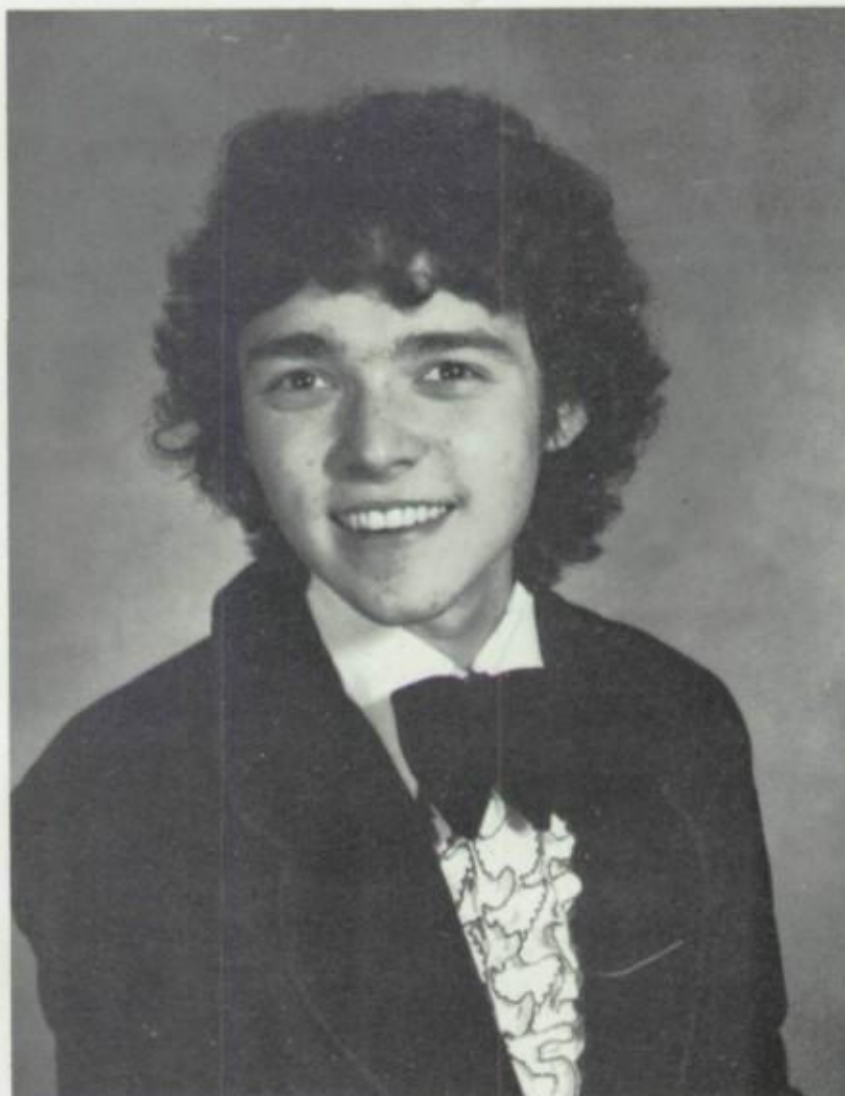

DAN O'DELL

"Never laugh at live dragons, you aren't nearly through this adventure yet."

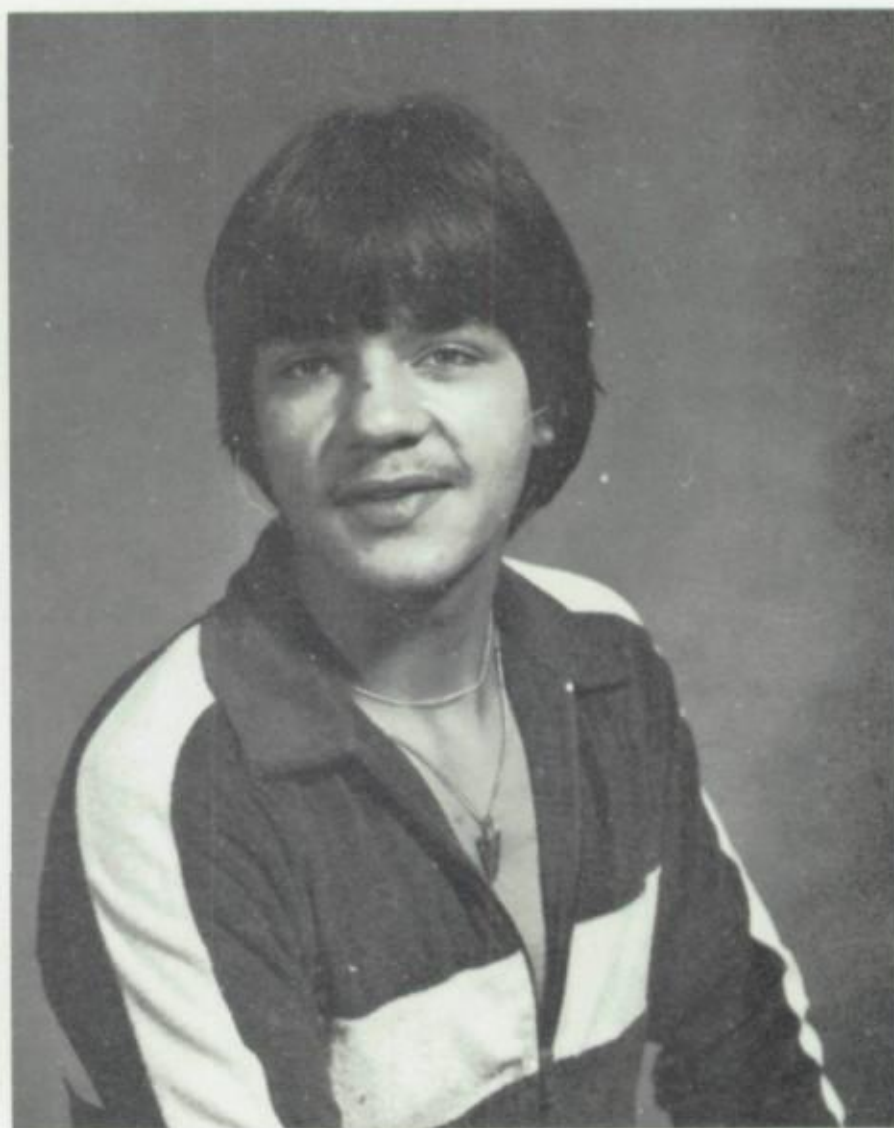

DONNAVA OSTRANDER

"I am the clue-finder, the web cutter, the stinging fly."

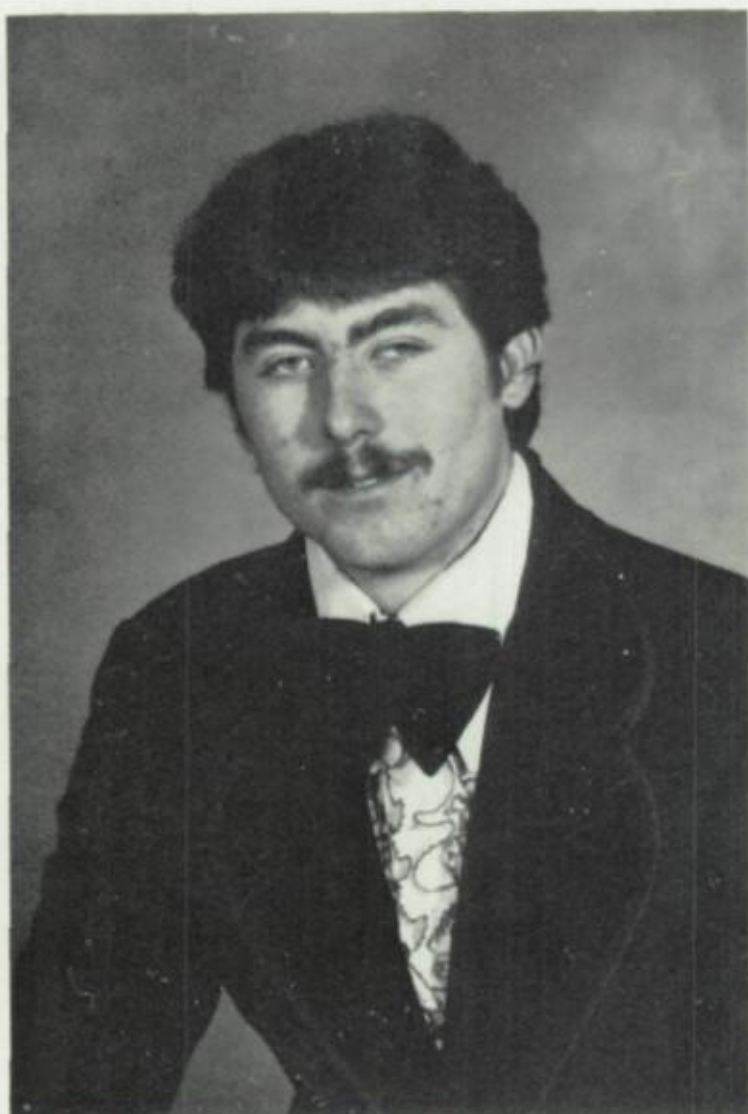

KIRT PARKINSON

"You said sitting on the doorstep and thinking would be my job . . . so I am sitting and thinking."

EVERETTE PINNOW

"What do you think I am . . . A porter?"

STEVE PRUETT

"Any excuse would do for him to get out of it."

KENDRA SHONG

Why, oh why did I ever leave my hobbit-hole.

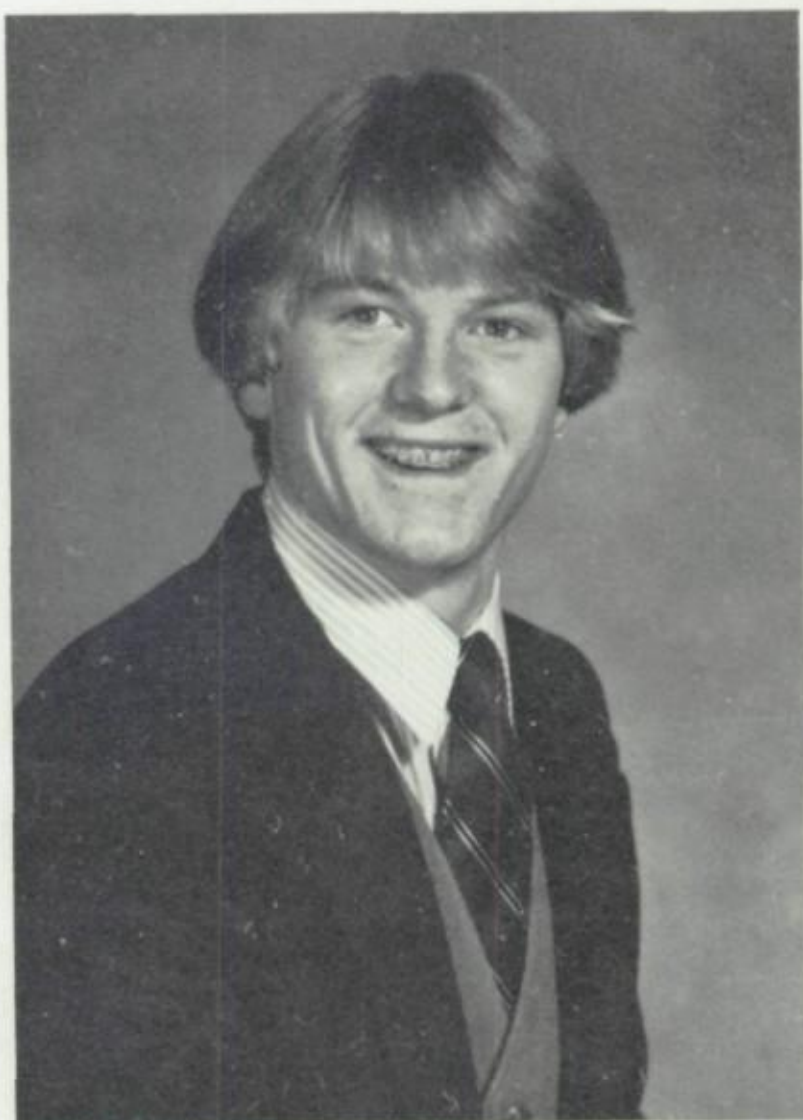

DEBRA STEIK

"Curse it! Curse it! Curse the Baggins."

KIM TAYLOR

"Drat this dwarfish racket."

GARY TOOMBS

"I don't want any adventures thank you!"

CINDY TUBBS

"Insect eyes, not animal eyes, only much too big."

PUPPETS!

"Goodie — we're going to make puppets."

"There they sat for a long while and did not dare to make a move."

Fifth and sixth graders try their luck at making their puppets 'come-alive'.

Judith Anderson of Redmond, Washington served as Ninilchik School's artist-in-residence for three weeks in March. All the students in grades K through 10 had an opportunity to work with her in creating and performing with puppets. The residency was sponsored by the Ninilchik Arts Council and Alaska Council of the Arts.

I've seen
new industry come, and
I think it's done good things."

Harley Ekren Fisherman, Longshoreman

Harley Ekren has been fishing and crabbing the waters of Kachemak Bay since 1949. And he understands the importance of industry to the region.

"As far as my family's concerned, there's no better place to live. I make a pretty good living fishing and crabbing, and I longshore, too. About a dozen timber ships come into Icy Bay every winter—and that's money I can count on when the fishing's slow."

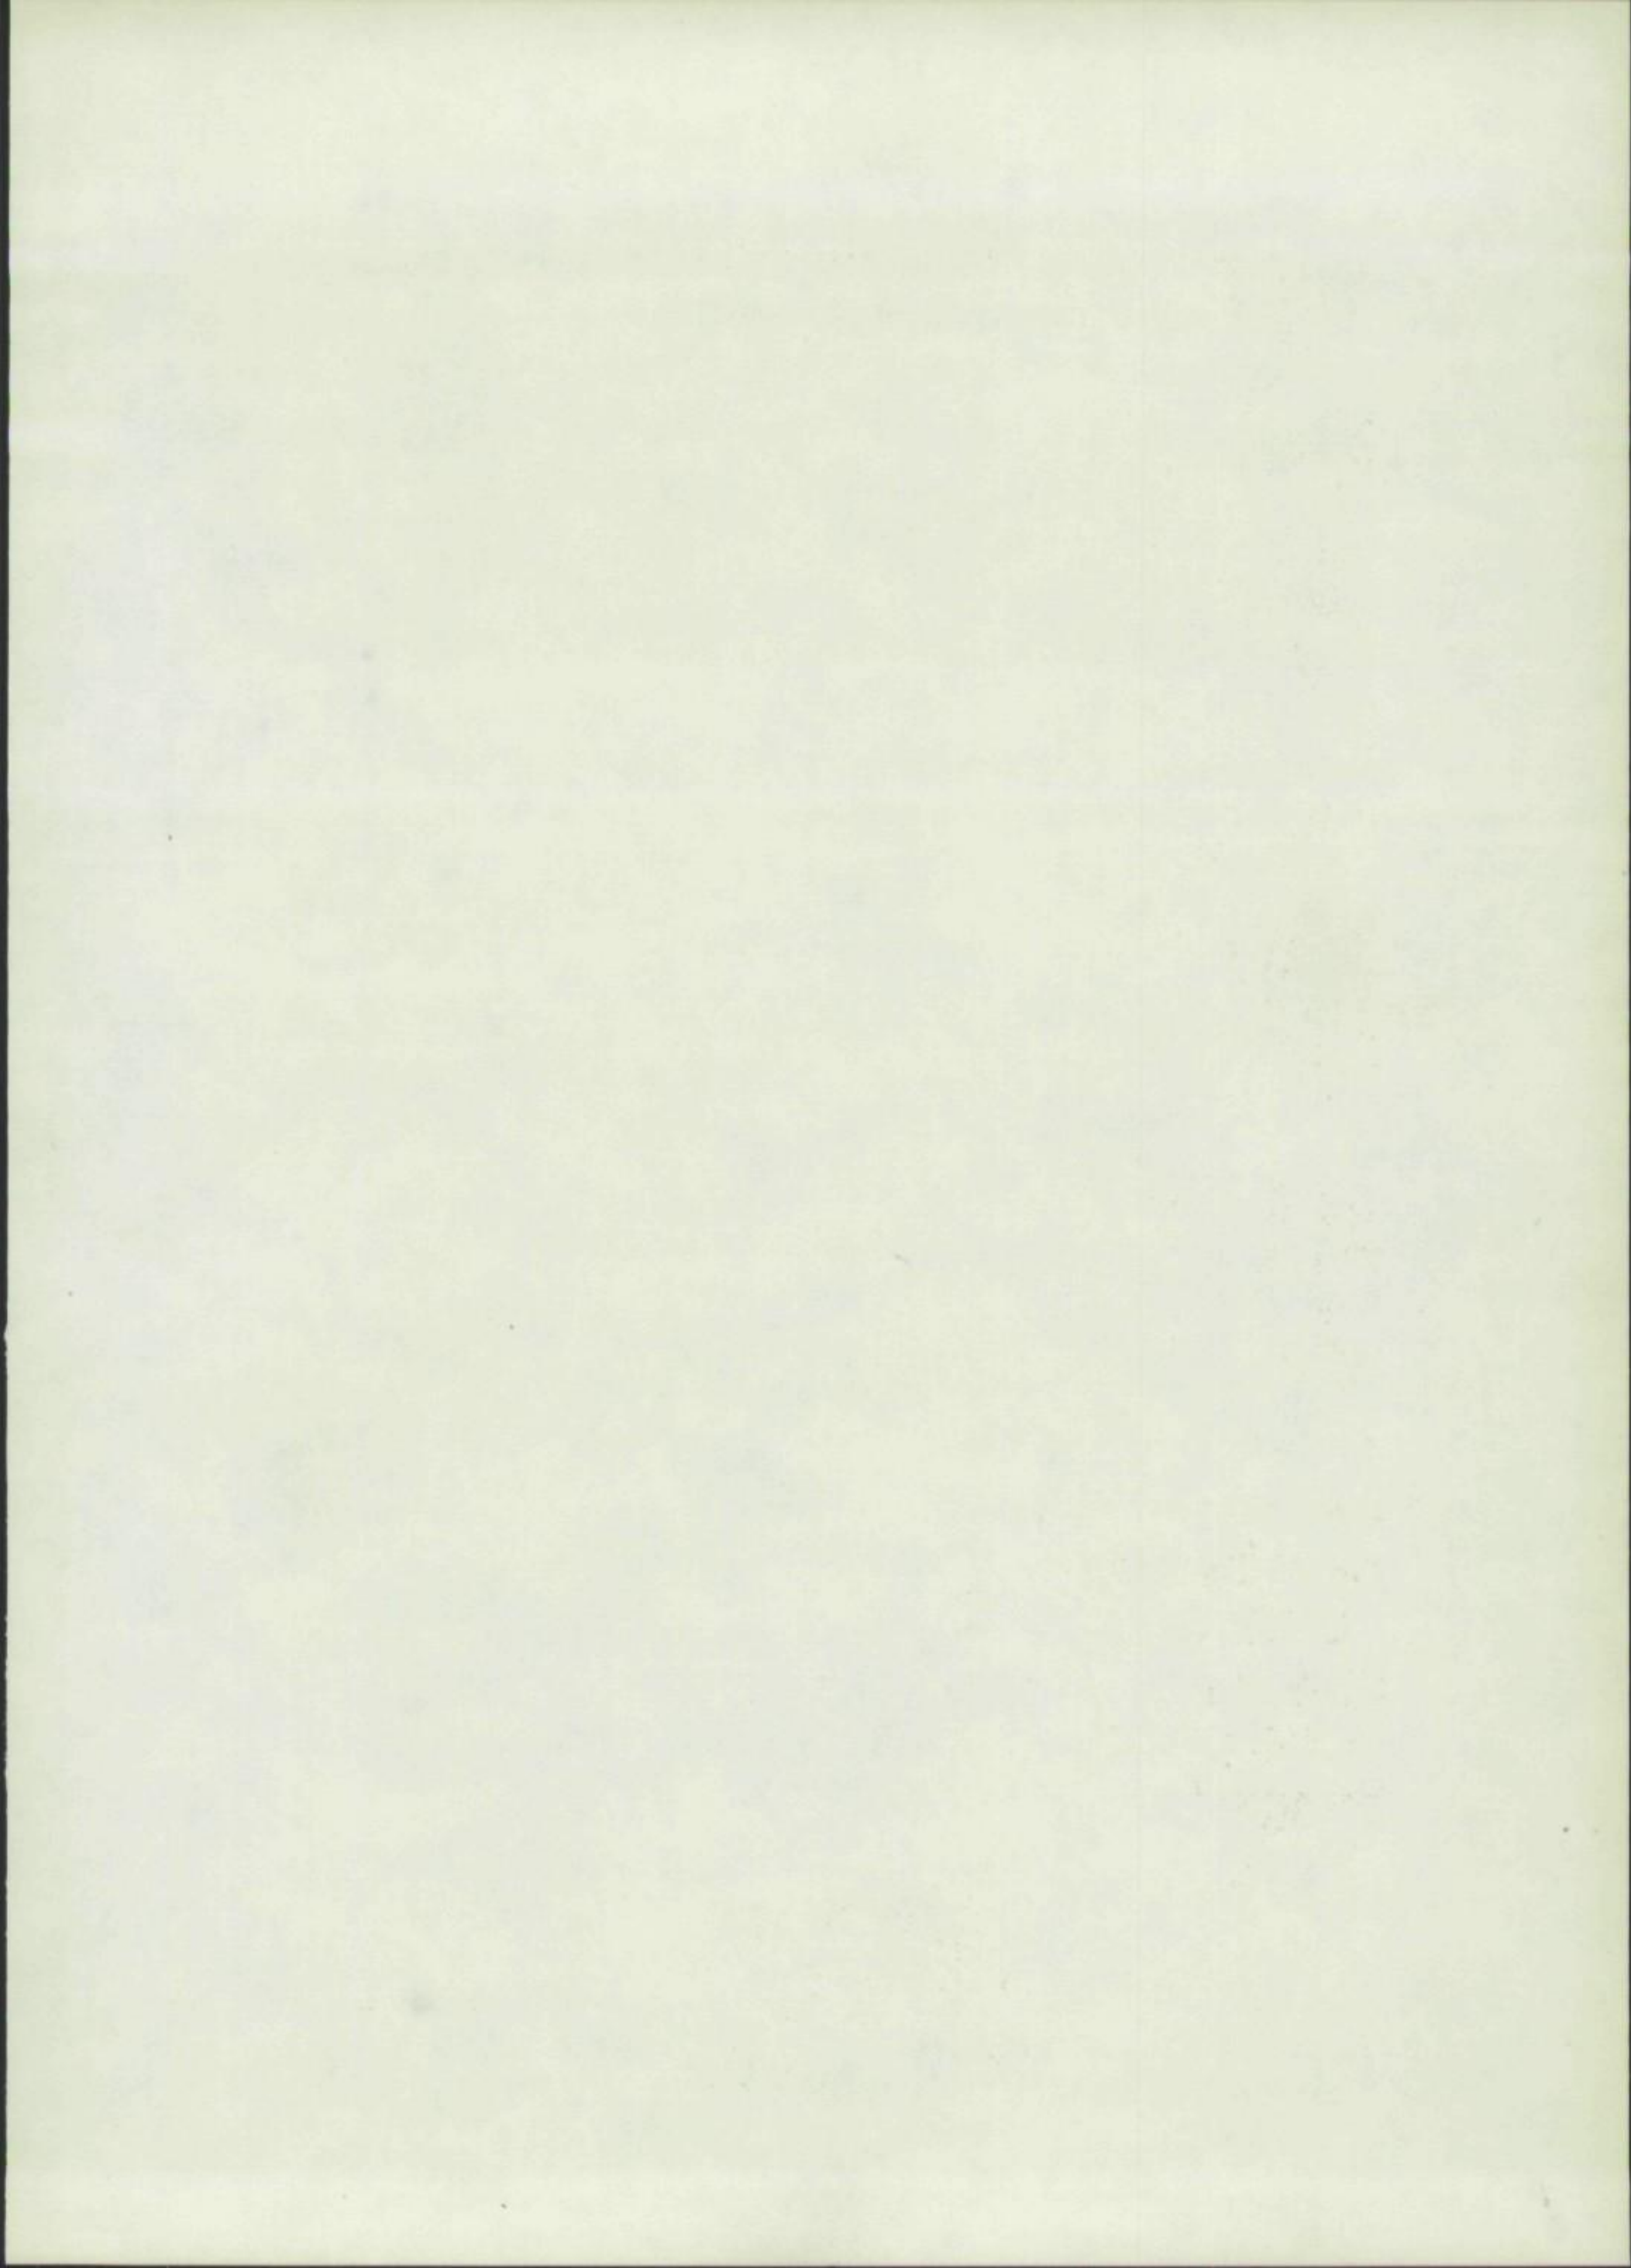

When the timber industry came to the Kachemak Bay area in 1968, some residents were afraid that tree bark settling to the bottom would kill the crab. But experts like Harley say the crabbing's never been better.

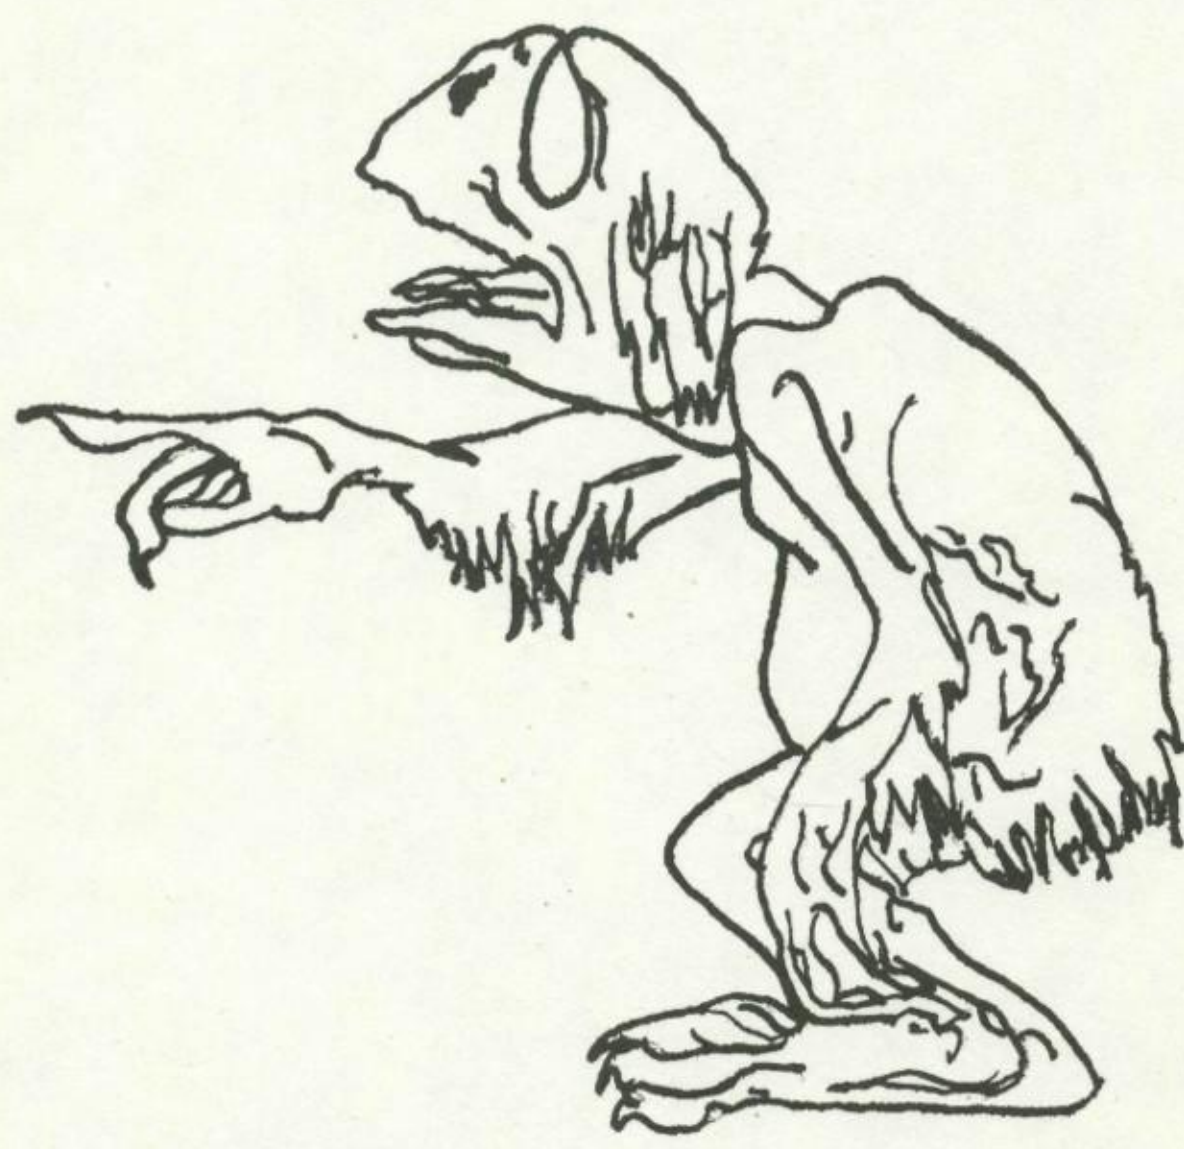

"Kachemak Bay's my home—I wouldn't live anywhere else. I've seen new industry come to the area. And I think it's done good things."

At Atlantic Richfield Company, we agree with Harley Ekren. With responsible development, industry can provide jobs—and help stabilize the Alaskan economy.
